Quintessential Disney

The Spotlight Collection (or Quintessential Disney Collection) grows larger and larger. The well priced series of figurines, mostly based upon model sheets, expands with Mickey Mouse, Goofy and the Cheshire Cat. Cheshire Cat will probably be a bestseller, because the last figurine of him was made in 1994 (it was the Membership Gift sculpture of 1994).

What else is coming?

There will also be released a few standalone or single sculptures.

A special figurine is "2nd Chance Champ" of Chicken Little. It is the first time the Walt Disney Classics Collection releases a figurine from a movie that has not even premiered in theaters (the movie will premier in the United States on November 4th).

The limited edition of the last quarter of 2005 is "Hat Trick": a copy in porcelain of the Christmas card that was sent by the Walt Disney Company in 1956. The set will be a numbered limited edition of only 1000 pieces and is accompanied by a reproduction of the 1956 Christmas card.

The sculpture of Chip 'n Dale is based on the 1953 Disney cartoon "Working for Peanuts".

A new base will be available in October for Mowgli (Silly Grin) and the Village Girl (Cow Smile), which were released in 2004.
